Stress on collective action

Gulf defense rests on GCC, Sultan says

RIYADH, Jan. 25 - The Gulf region's security and stability are the common responsibility of its own states. Defense Minister Prince Sultan said Monday as he opened the first meeting attended by Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) defense ministers. Prince Sultan said regional and international situations have made it necessary for the six GCC member states to pool their resources and potentials in order to achieve the highest level of coordination in order to guarantee the security and stability of each member state "in the face of growing foreign threats."

The conference is being held at the request of the GCC heads of state which include Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, UAE, Bahrain and Qatar. It will discuss defense needs of the GCC in relation to recommendations made recently by the chiefs of staff of the armed

"Gulf defense is the sole responsibility of Gulf people and can be achieved through close cooperation," Prince Sultan said. He voiced hope that the meeting will translate the recommendations into action and achieve the people's goals. The GCC, according to Prince Sultan, is not hostile to any other state and is not a regional alliance. He stressed that it is force, to be added to the other Arab and Islamic forces that are working toward restoring lost Arab rights. It will set a good example of organized cooperation and solidarity.

We must draw up plans for collective action to ensure the security of the member states and to keep the Gulf region away from the hazards of international rivalries which do not serve the true interests of the people," Prince Sultan said. He expressed confidence that the people are quite capable of maintaining the peace and stability of their states and

Following the address, the ministers went into a closed session which ended shortly after noon. Another closed session was held in the evening before the ministers went to greet King Khaled.

In an interview Sunday, Prince Sultan ruled out the possibility of standardizing arms saying the ministers are opposed to this principle as they are against dependence on a single source of weapons for their armed forces. He told Arab News that the member states were different from other international groups which believe in combined military forces. "Our forces believe in the peace and security of their own lands and peoples." he

On the eve of the conference Prince Sultan said that the ministers, unlike their counterparts elsewhere, will not confine their discussions to military matters only. They will deal with other topics of interest and value to the whole region.

He said that conferees held the same views on the current Iraqi-Iranian war as GCC summit members who believed that the bloodbath must stop and mediation efforts must continue. He said that Iraq did not demand more than its own legitimate rights and that both parties to the conflict must agree to sit down and negotiate in within international laws and resolutions.

In an arrival statement the Defense Minister of Kuwait Sheikh Salem Sabah Al Salem said that he hoped the GCC conference will succeed in building an Arab army capable of defending wise policies of the governments of the region. (See related story on page 11.) He singled out resolution of trade friction and administrative reform, areas in which the 70-year-old Suzuki has staked his political career, as two of the most urgent tasks facing his conservative Liberal Democratic Party (LDP).

"It is imperative that Japan restrain trade protectionism, seek to maintain and strengthen free trade, and strive to further open our markets, to promote imports of manufactured goods." he said. He added "it was in line with this realization" that he ordered across-the-board tariff cuts in an effort to defuse what was fast becoming a political issue when he reshuffled his cabinet last November, just 16 months after the ruling LDP took office.

In the area of foreign affairs, the prime minister said improvement in Japan-Soviet relations is another important issue in Japanese foreign policy, but said ties remain strained because of a Soviet military buildup off northern Japan, Moscow's military intervention in Afghanistan and the Polish crisis.

He said the situation in Poland is one that has "grave ramifications for world peace and stability," and that Japan will continue to stay in close consultation with Western allies and the United States. "It is of primary importance that Polish

He added that Japan would "maintain Western unity and act appropriately as a Western country." He did not elaborate. On other issues, Suzuki stated that Japan has an obligation to make a steady effort to acquire minimum necessary defense capability within the bounds of its "no war" constitution, but added that such efforts must be supported by "popular consensus."

. He reiterated that Japan should not possess a war machine that poses a threat to neighboring countries nor transgress from its so-called three non-nuclear principles that ban the possession, manufacture or introduction of nuclear weapons into Japan.

Suzuki also repeated that Japan must firmly maintain its security relationship with the United States, as well as possess a "proper level' of defense power.

He said the public generally acknowledges that the 30-year-old Japan-U.S. security system has been the foundation for ensuring Japan's peace and stability, adding that although bilateral relations remain strong, it is important to develop them further "for the peace and prosperity of the international community.

However, Suzuki did not refer to criticism that Japan is getting a "free ride" on defense, allowing it to concentrate on its economic

U.S. atom plant put on emergency

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP) - A "site emergency" was declared Monday at the Ginna nuclear power plant in Ontario. New York after a steam tube ruptured in a primary cooling system, releasing radioactive steam into the atmosphere, a federal official said.

The plant, located about 29 kms northwest of Rochester, was shut down, Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman Gary Sanborn said. There is "no danger to the public at his time." said Richard Sullivan, spokesman for the Rochester Gas and Electric Co. which operates the plant. A "site emergency" declaration is the second highest in NRC classifications. The most serious is a general emergency. "There are indications of a leak from the primary system to a secondary system in a steam generator tube." said Sue Gagner of the NRC's Washington office.

Sanborn said the NRC had opened a center at its King of Prussia, Pennsylvania, regional office to monitor the situation and provide a central location for information.

Jaruzelski hints at martial law end chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski told parliament Monday that martial law restrictions should be lifted by the end of Febuary. Elements of martial law in industry "would have to be retained for a longer period," Gen. Jaruzelski said in a speech to the Sejm (parliament), Warsaw radio reported.

He was addressing the first full session of the Sejm held since martial law was imposed on Dec. 13 and military authorities cracked down on the Solidarity free trade union.

The radio quoting the parliament speaker reported that five Polish members of parliament have resigned their posts.

Warsaw radio reported the resignations in a broadcast monitored in Vienna and named the five as Ludwik Drodzdz, Jozes Grygiel, Jozef Henc, Mieczyslawb and Stanislaw Kowalczyk.

The report gave no details on the circumstances surrounding the resignations. It added that a proposed government reshuffle would be submitted to parliament. The radio also said an item on "changes in the council of ministers (government)," had been added to the parliament's agenda, which also included legislation legalizing martial law and accompanying decrees.

These curbed civil freedom and provided for the suspension of Solidarity and the internment of some 5.000 political dissenters. The radio quoted Gen. Jaruzelski, who is also prime minister and Communist Party chief, as saying 1,760 people had been released from internment, but 4,549 were still Gen. Jaruzelski said: "Let all the difficulties connected with martial law be lifted as soon as possible. But this would depend on existing conditions and possibilities for normal life and work in Poland," he said.

"In any case, neither the calendar nor external pressure will decide the future of Poland. "By the end of next month the restrictions

The problem in industry is different. The elements of martial law must be kept in force for a longer period," Gen. Jaruzelski said.

Gen. Jaruzelski's remarks, as reported by Warsaw radio, apparently envisaged only a possible lifting of "restrictions" by the end of February but not an end to martial law itself by that date.

His proviso that "elements of martial law" would be retained in industry appeared to indicate continuing military control of key branches such as heavy industry, mining, power plants, railways and communications, where workers are subject to military law and

A report by the official news agency PAP said Gen. Jaruzelski told the Sejm session the motives and aims underlying the creation of the Military Council of National Salvation which he heads were to save Poland from

He said in the period preceding martial law there had been disastrous infringement of the inalienable function of the constitutional state authorities. The stability and security of the state had been undermined.

Gen. Jaruzelski accused extremists in Solidarity of having ignored calls for agreement by parliament. These extremists had paralized the authorities, spread hatred, continuously broken the law, imperiled the country's alliances and security, ruined the economy and abused confidence placed in them by millions of people, he said.

PAP quoted Gen. Jaruzelski as saying elements of martial law were being gradually alleviated or totally removed.

The general said that provided no unforeseen circumstances occurred and no illegal actions were taken, the martial law restrictions would be substantially limited or completely lifted by the end of next month.

But he warned that if "anti-state forces" were to take action, then martial law would Numeiri, who heads the new committee, said the dissolution order complied with recommendations made at a recent conference of about 200 high-level executives and politicians.

The move was also necessary to allow for a broader participation by the people in the process of national construction and to ensure collective responsibility "at this crucial turning point that our nation is passing through," Numeiri said.

Pakistan can make bomb--CLA

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AFP) - Pakistan could produce a nuclear bomb during the next several years, but is unlikely to do so for fear of endangering a $3.2 billion six-year United States military economic aid program the Sunday edition of the New York Times reported.

Quoting the Central Intelligence Agency's (CIA) "special national intelligence estimate 31-81", the Times said that Pakistan could continue to produce and stockpile fissionable materials for an eventual production of an atomic weapon.

According to the CIA report, completed last month. India's opposition to Pakistan's atomic program could lead to Indian attacks on their neighbor's nuclear installations.

Pakistani Foreign Affairs Minister Agha Shahi is due in New Delhi on Friday for talks with Indian Foreign Minister P.V. Narasimha Row on the creation of a nuclear-free zone in south-west Asia. The Times adds that these talks are being watched closely by the United States government and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA).

The Times said that certain political observers here have expressed private doubts that Pakistan would curtail its nuclear program despite India's efforts.

French expert discounts lasting oil glut

DHAHRAN, Jan. 25 - The French goverament and its oil experts have dismissed the possibility of a permanent oil glut and the decline of oil prices to $15 per barrel.

Speaking at the inaugural ceremony of a three-day symposium here Sunday night Pierre Desprairie, chairman of the French Institute of Petroleum (IFP), said: "whereas some commentators expected the present world oil glut to be permanent and the price of oil to hurtle down to $15 per barrel, neither the government nor our own experts share this

The symposium of French Oil Technology opened at building 10 of the University of Petroleum and Minerals (UPM). Other speakers at the inaugural ceremony included Dr. Saleh Bakhrebah, secretary general of UPM; Jean Favre, IFP director; and Jean Andre Roret, chairman of the board of petroleum equipment manufacturers.

After praising the Kingdom for unifying the price of oil at a reasonable level, he remarked that in the long run—by which he meant five to 15 years — a world rate of industrial growth near four percent would involve a high probability of a scarcity of oil supplies, and an uncontrollable increase of prices. Saudi Arabia is France's principal oil supplier, he obuerved. Last year France purchased 45 million tons of oil from the Kingdom, at a price of $12 billion. On the other hand, France as Saudi Arabia's sixth most important trading partner exports only $2 billion to the Kingdom annually. The balance might be improved, thought Desprairie, who was standing in for Michel Jobert, French minister of state in charge of foreign trade who was unable to attend the symposium due to a change in the scheduling of government meetings.

Jean Favre, director of the IFP, spelled out the impact on the reserve base which improved offshore technologies, enhanced recovery and the utilization of heavy oil would have. By increasing recovery from 25 percent to 40 percent, 90 billion tons could be added to the world's cumulative production and proven reserves. Future discoveries also might be increased by as much as 70 billion tons, he said.

Perhaps significantly, it is in the field of offshore technology and heavy oil recovery that French petroleum research has distinguished itself.

The IFP, whose principal interest is research, operates a school of petroleum which graduates 200 students a year, one third of whom are non-French. It is this school which trains most of France's petroleum engineers.

Favre told Arab News that an agreement exists between IFP and UPM whereby French graduates of the school work at Dhahran as members of the university staff or as lecturers in place of military service and that, with the completion of the UPM Research Institute, an exchange of experience between the two institutes is being studied.

Thirty French companies are participating in the symposium, Jan. 24 to 26 at Al Khobar's Meridien Hotel. Some of these, like Coflexip Saudi Arabia, a collaborative effort between Coffexip of Paris and Sheikh Ahmad Jamal Jawa of Riyadh's Witlag Trading Company, are new to the local market.

Another newcomer to the country, Jubail. Fabrication Industries, which is 40 percent owned and managed by Union Industrielie Et d'Entreprise of Paris, received its license four months ago, with an initial investment of $15 million. It will have a capacity to produce 9,000 tons of jackets with a labor force of

Other participants at the symposium are already operating in the country.

France violates neutral PLO lashes policy in Mideast--Syria out at U.S.

DAMASCUS, Jan. 25 (AP) — The Syrian government newspaper Tishrin Monday accused Socialist France of violating the Gaullist era of neutrality on the Middle East conflict by abstaining from voting on a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for sanctions against Israel.

The newspaper described as "weak and illogical" a defense of the abstention made by French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson in an interview published by the independent English language Lebanese magazine Mon day Morning.

Cheysson was quoted as saying the U.N. Charter reserved sanctions for cases of "direct threat to world peace" and France did not consider Israel's annexation of Syria's Golan Heights as a threat to world peace.

"This position confirms (French President Francois) Mitterrand's France has deviated from the neutral policy (in the Middle East) that was formulated by its late President Charles de Gaulle." Tishrin said.

Newspapers in the Gulf states have been outspokenly critical of the five nations which abstained from voting for sanctions in last week's Security Council debate on Israel's failure to rescind the annexation of the Editorials suggested the abstentions could have an adverse effect on relations between the Arab world and the abstaining nations. Britain, France, Japan, Ireland and Panama.

Egypt, Libya to normalize relations soon, official says

KUWAIT, Jan. 25 (AP) - Restoration of diplomatic relations between Egypt and Libya is imminent following top-level contacts between the two countries, a high-ranking Egyptian official was quoted Monday as saying. "The step will catch Arab and world quarters by surprise." the unidentified official was quoted by the Kuwait newspaper Al -Seyassah.

The report said that contacts for the normalization of Cairo-Tripoli relations were being undertaken by a well-known Egyptian personality who had a prominent role in the first years of the late President Sadat and who maintains close relations with the Libyan

It said the person in question, whom it indicated was journalist Muhammad Hassanein Heykal, met recently with President Hosni Mubarak on the issue.

Al -Seyassah said that Libya was taking all necessary steps for withdrawal of its forces from Chad and the Sudanese-Libyan frontier as one of the conditions stipulated by Egypt. Furthermore. Tripoli has decided to stop mass media propaganda against Cairo, it

Syria complains about Jordan charges

DAMASCUS, Jan. 25 (AP) - A fresh accusation flew between Syria and Jordan Monday when the Syrian government summoned a high ranking Jordanian diplomat to complain his government wrongly accused Syria of terrorism.

Syria's deputy foreign minister. Nasser Qaddour, called Jordanian charge d'affaires Walid al-Faraj to the foreign ministry where official government sources said the Jordanian was handed a formal letter of complaint.

The sources described the encounter as a "further serious deterioration in the relations between Syria and Jordan." The two countries have traded accusations of terrorism against one another over the past two weeks.

Jordan blamed Syrian intelligence in the Jan. 11 bomb explosion at a grocery store in the Jordanian capital. Amman, that wounded six persons. Syria never responded to the charge until Monday when Syrian sources told the Associated Press that Qaddour told Al-Faraj the Syrians in fact had proof that it was Jordanian intelligence that was responsible for the grocery bombing.

BEIRUT, Jan. 25 (AP) - The Palestine Liberation Organization accused U.S. ambassador to the United Nations Jeane Kirkpatrick on Monday of issuing statements "hostile to the Palestinian people and to their sole legitimate representative." The PLO statement also accused Kirkpatrick of "interfering in the internal affairs of a permanent observer member of the United Nations, blindly supporting the Israeli aggressor and flagrantly violating the U.N. Char-

The strongly-worded protest was a reaction to remarks Kirkpatrick made in an interview broadcast by Israel's state radio over the weekend. The American U.N. ambassador was quoted as saying the PLO was not the only representative of the Palestinians and that the Palestinian commando movement has "participated in terrorist operations with help from the Soviet Union and Cuba.

"Mrs. Kirkpatrick should realize that the PLO fully represents the Palestinian people in all its venues of existence within and without the occupied territories whether the United States liked it or not." said the PLO statement, distributed in Beirut by the PLOcontrolled Palestine news agency, Wafa.

"Mrs. Kirkpatrick also should keep in mind that 117 nations recognize the PLO as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people and this is more than double the number of nations that recognize Israel." the statement added.

"Mrs. Kirkpatrick has to bear in mind too that the PLO is a full-fledged member of the Arab League, the Organization of Islamic Conference and the nonaligned nations' movement, in addition to its status as a permanent observer at the United Nations and all its specialized agencies as well as its observer status at the Organization of African Unity." the statement said.

It charged the Kirkpatrick remarks were a further evidence of the conspiracy hatched by the United States for an Israeli military operation" against PLO's, positions in southern Lebanon.

PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and senior aides have been lately saying Israel would soon break a six-month-old ceasefire and stage a massive invasion of southern Lebanon.

The area has been relatively calm since the United States and the United Nations worked out the July 24 ceasefire that halted 15 days of massive Israeli-PLO warfare.

The return of the advisers is the most concrete sign yet of improving relations between Moscow and Cairo under President Hosni Mubarak, but there have been other signals such as Cairo's approval of an increase in the Soviet Embassy staff and plans to increase

A foreign ministry spokesman told the Associated Press the experts would be working at the iron and steel factory south of Cairo at Helwan, the High Dam at Aswan and an aluminum plant at Naga Hamadi in southern Egypt — all projects built with Soviet aid in contracts, were American and French technicians also are doing studies on the feasibility of upgrading the High dam, which officials say provided 65 percent of Egypt's power.

Asked when Egypt would restore normal relations with the Soviet Union, Ali replied: 'Not in the near future."

Egyptian diplomatic sources said the return of the technicians was requested by the government-owned industrial projects involved. "The Soviet technicians were helpful and there is no harm in admitting that." said one source. The late President Anwar Sadat expelled Moscow's ambassador and six top diplomats last Sept. 15, accusing them of contributing to sectarian strife in Egypt. He also expelled 700 Soviet technicians, according to the semi-official press, sending Egyptian-Soviet relations plunging to their lowest point since he ejected 17,000 military advisers in 1972.

Canada ready to supply Gulf with reactors, minister says

KUWAIT. Jan. 25 (AP) — Canadian Minister of Energy. Mines and Resources Marc Lalonde said Monday his country was prepared to supply Kuwait and other Gulf states with nuclear reactors and emphasized his government was not placing any impediments to the transfer of Canadian technology to Third World countries.

"Canada is prepared to supply Kuwait with four nuclear reactors for peaceful uses of nuclear energy." Lalonde told a press conference. "Kuwait is expected to take a decision on the use of nuclear reactors soon," he added.

Describing Canadian nuclear reactors as "of the best in the world," Lalonde said his country possesses six of the world's ten largest reactors.

Asked about his government's possible reaction toward an expected outcry if Canada decides to cooperate with the Arab world in the field of energy. Lalonde replied "I do not anticipate any major row."

The transfer of nuclear technology from Canada to other countries is not attached to any strings," he added.

He said he discussed during his talks here with Oil Minister Sheikh Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah a Canadian offer to sell Kuwait nuclear reactors and assist Kuwait in the field of oil and gas exploration technology.

The International Co.

ics said the advisers held important positions in Egyptian industry, and they described Egyptian claims of having easily replaced the Soviets as being exaggerated.

Egyptian diplomatic sources said Cairo recently approved the addition of two Soviet diplomats to the 32-man staff here. The sources expressed confidence Moscow would not object to Egypt increasing its staff in Moscow, although it has not done so.

In Moscow, an Egyptian commercial official officer said a trade delegation led by Commercial Minister Mahmoud Atief was expected to sign within days an agreement raising Egyptian-Soviet trade 18-20 percent this year. Last year, the Soviet Union exported $251.58 million in goods to Egypt. and Egypt sold the Soviets goods worth $285.74

Egyptian diplomats conceded these moves might be leading to normal relations between Moscow and Cairo.

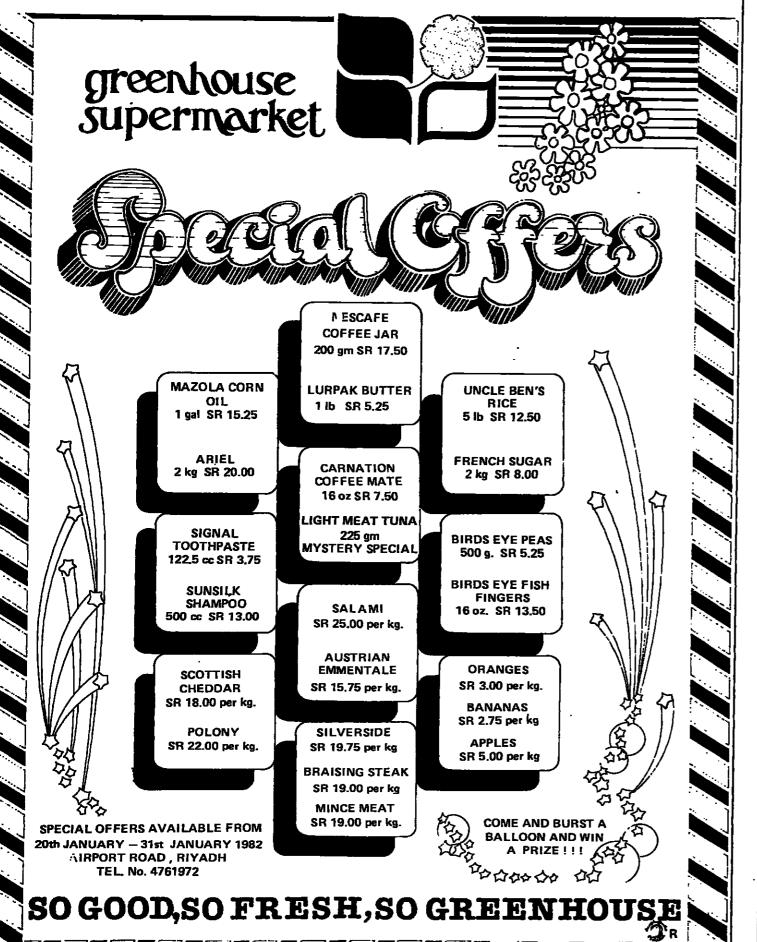

In a message to Prime Minister Foud Mohieddin last Friday, Soviet Premier Nikolai Tikhonov expressed hope that Mohieddin would "promote normalization and development of Soviet-Egyptian relations.

PRESSURE ON POLAND

Poland's military chief Gen. Jaruzelski has announced that martial law will be lifted by the end of February indicating the success, in part, of the Western pressure on Poland and the Soviet Union as well as the opposition of the majority of Poles to military dictatorship.

The announcement should cheer the Polish people and their supporters outside. It should depress the Soviet Union and other Communist countries which must now view their own regimes as less firmly entrenched than they had believed.

Besides, the whole episode of Poland carried its own stark esspus in contemporary history. It dared the Soviet Union as a domineering force over an unwilling nation. It showed the bankruptcy of communism as a creed claiming to represent the bulk of the working classes while at the same time denying these classes their basic rights which in the so-called capitalist imperialist West, are taken for granted. It showed that the free trade union of Solidarity is a genuine popular workers' movement seeking the fundamental right of self-expression and that it is willing to make sacrifices to preserve it even if 5,000 members have to suffer detention. Its leader, Walesa, proved to be a hard nut to crack.

All these factors were helped by the serious financial and economic conditions in the country. The government was heavily indebted to the West and came to a point where it was practically unable to cough up the interest payments on the debts. The economy is a shambles and the Soviet Union is in no position to provide. Poland with enough money to enable it to scoff at Western pressure. The military rulers simply had to succumb or permit a Soviet invasion. With Afghanistan still occupied, Moscow certainly balked at another invasion without losing much of its standing in the world as a champion of the downtrodden masses.

Finally, the unusually wide publicity given to the Polish crisis by the Western media -compared with the little we get about Israeli occupation of four Arab countries-projected the Polish military as villains of the peace who must relinquish power to a civilian authority. In this, the media has amply

Belgium aims at EEC unity

BRUSSELS -Belgium, whose new center-right coalition is struggling to govern an increasingly divided country, has to contend with the added burden of chairing all the European Community councils for the next six months.

Belgium inherits this unenviable task from Britain whose vain battle for a parcel of community reforms - culminating in the unsuccessful London summit last month - occupied the European Commission and the EEC Ministerial Councils over the past six months.

The reforms were proposed as a long-term solution to British objections to the level of their budget contributions to the community. With the end of the British presidency it looks as if they will be quietly forgotten.

An attempt to cut the cost of the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP), which secures fixed prices for farmers, was at the heart of the proposed changes: as the CAP is dear to the hearts and easy on the pockets of smaller community countries, plans to reform it will not be a priority of the Belgian presidency.

Each EEC presidency puts its own focus on Community affairs. While the British presidency's grand scheme of reviewing EEC policies and their financing tended to alienate the other partners, the Belgians are set on a more placatory path.

Long used to maintaining the status quo between Belgium's two national communities, the Walloons and the Flemings, Brussels governments are singularly well equipped to act as nursemaid to the 10 Common Market countries.

Foreign Minister Leo Tindermans is resolved to strengthen European unity. Belgium has a strong vested interest in maintaining a closely knit Europe and sees economic and monetary cooperation between the 10 as the keynote of its presidency. With the highest unemployment in Western Europe and worsening economic problems, Belgium is desperate to attract foreign investment.

The European Monetary System (EMS), which coordinates the currency values of all the EEC countries, with the exception of Britain and Greece, to limit exchange rate fluctuations, will be at the center of the Belgian presidency's work.

America restricts Cuban immigration

MIAMI, Florida -The door flung open by the United States when Fidel Castro took power in Cuba 23 years ago has slammed shut. With more than 800,000 Cuban exiles now in this country, the federal government has served notice that Cubans who wish to leave the Communist island 240 kms from here must wait their turn under rigid quotas.

Andres Rodriguez Hernandez, a 20-year-old stowaway, scrambled off a Panamanian freighter last Wednesday prepared to begin a new life. Two days later, he was placed on a charter flight back to Havana — the first Cuban sent back to that island nation since 1959.

As many as 5,000 members of Miami's Cuban exile community took to the streets last Saturday in a protest sparked by the Hernandez case and another, similar incident. The demonstration finally was quelled by police, who used tear gas and jailed 34 Cuban-Americans on charges ranging from inciting a riot to assaulting a police officer. Tensions and frustration remain high following the disturbance. Some officials say there is a realization that the Rodriguez deportation was only the most clear-cut of recent indications that U.S. policy for Cuban immigration has changed. "Cubans have grown accustomed to seeing

Miami and the rest of the United States as the lifeboat they have traditionally climbed aboard. The deportation of Rodriguez Hernandez is symbolic of the end of an era," explained Roberto Fabricio, a Miami Herald columnist. Although the great majority of this country's Cuban exiles arrived legally aboard the "freedom

Koivisto Vs. Russian bear

By Chris Mosey

HELSINKI -In the end neither the horrendous complexities of the Finnish electoral system nor the disapproval of Leonid Brezhnev could stop Mauno Koivisto, the man now destined to fill the shoes of the mighty Urho Kekkonen as president of Finland.

Koivisto last week won a landslide 145 seats in a 301-member Electoral College which on Oct. 26 will choose the nation's head of state. In the past the post has been held by almost monarchal figures whose main job has been to keep the Russian bear

With such a majority nothing can stop Koivisto, whose support draws on all sections of Finnish society. After a quarter of a century under the magisterial Kekkonen, Finland now looks forward to a more delegated power structure at home linked to a continuation of Kekkonen's policy of "thinking geographically" - a Finnish political euphemism for ". bearing in mind your next door neighbor is the Soviet Union" - in foreign affairs.

Koivisto, 58, a dock worker from the West Coast. joined the Social democratic Party in 1947. After completing his education, he shot like a comet through the Finnish political firmament to become minister of finance in 1966, governor of the Central Bank the following year and prime minister in

He has an irreverence that appeals to the man in the street ('all I know about the economy is that it will be worse than last year,' is one of his betterknown utterances) but which scares the old men in It was only in the latter days of the campaign that

Brezhnev acknowledged the Koivisto steamroller by sending him an encouraging telegram. The Politburo had earlier promoted Karjalainen, former foreign minister and head of the Finnish-Soviet Trade Commission. Koivisto, like the other seven candidates, pledged adherence to the Kekkonen doctrine but he is likely to prove a little too independent for Moscow's taste. Although as president he will be above party politics, he is devoutly anti-Communist and Soviet interference in Finnish affairs is likely to meet with opposition. Koivisto's relative lack of political experience worries both Brezhnev and local observers. However, since taking over from the ailing 81-year-old Kekkonen as acting president last September and in his election campaign, Koivisto has successfully avoided political infighting and remained above party politics.

Koivisto's victory may also dampen domestic criticism of the Finnish system of electing a president.

In a poll immediately before the election - when there was speculation that a "compromise candidate" might still be chosen by the electoral college despite popular support for Koivisto - nearly 60 percent of Finns said the system should be changed, perhaps to something resembling the French twopoll method. Nicaragua may get German arms

By Hugh o'Shaughnessy

LONDON -The left-wing Sandinista government in Managua has been having talks with West Germany on arms purchases in a bid to reduce its reliance for military supplies on the Soviet Union and its satellites. It is not clear yet whether Bonn will meet the Sandinista requests for guns and light armored vehicles or whether the Schmidt government will decide not to risk further U.S. wrath on the subject.

Washington is already in a fury about French arms sales worth $10 million to Nicaragua last month. Casper Weinberger, the U.S. defense secretary, has said the French decision to sell arms to the Nicaraguan government and help with military training was "a slap in the face." The Mitterrand government is nevertheless standing firm on the deal and there is speculation that France may also sell Nicaragua Mirage warplanes.

Last month's arms deal was the second time in a few months that Paris had intervened crucially in favor of left-wing movements in Central America and rejected Ronald Reagan's thesis that the Left must be crushed in the isthmus.

Washington is still resentful of the declaration of the French and Mexican governments in August in which they called for talks between the left-wing Salvadoran guerrilla insurgents and the right-wing junta in San Salvador led by President Jose Napoleon Duarte, which has been receiving strong military, economic and diplomatic support from Washington.

The Franco-Mexican declaration was a major diplomatic victory for the Salvadoran insurgents and had the effect of a powerful depth-charge in the normally flower-strewn waters of Latin American diplomacy.

The French arms deal has been greeted with quiet satisfaction by the Sandinista authorities, who are far from uncritical of the Soviet Union, the Eastern bloc and Cuba. The Sandinistas however have been forced to accept East bloc arms after receiving lightly veiled threats of invasion from the Reagan administration.

Washington is still allowing supporters of the former Somoza dictatorship - who are dedicated to overthrowing the Sandinistas - to arm, train and operate openly in Florida and elsewhere, despite repeated requests from the Managua government that the Reagan administration should halt their sufficient grounds for political asylum. The refugee has to prove a "well-founded fear of political persecution." Quotas were established for all regions, including 3,000 political refugees in fiscal 1982 for Latin America. Later that year, Castro made a shambles of the new law by opening the Port of Mariel to Cuban-Americans who wished to pick up their felatives. The Cuban government sent nearly 125,000 people - thousands directly from Cuban prisons - to the United States in the "freedom flotilla," then refused to take any of them back. But 1981 brought strict enforcement of the refugee law. Only about 100 Cubans came to this country as legal immigrants, with several hundred other Cubans who were political prisoners admitted in a special category.

In the past years we went out of our way to admit Cuban refugees. But the law has made a very dramatic change," Philip Chicola of the State Department's Bureau for Refugee Affairs said in an interview last month. "We are not going to allow any large numbers of Cubans to come in as refugees any time in the near future. If they wish, they can apply to come in as immigrants." Last year, U.S. authorities for the first time deported Cubans who came here illegally from a third country. They were sent back to the third country, such as Spain.

But the Rodriguez deportation brought the new Cuban policy into focus. The administration of President Ronald Reagan, under growing criticism from blacks and liberal leaders for holding all arriving Haitian refugees in refugee camps while seeking court approval to deport them, now faces anger from the Cuban community, too.

Observers say that U.S. officials may have misinterpreted negative reaction to the Mariel refugee Cuban-Americans, thinking they would also accept the restricted immigration. (AP)

New cartoon, comic strip series to begin in Arab News on Friday

JEDDAH - An invasion from outer space will take place this Friday when The Spacers initiates the appearance in Arab News of cartoon and comic strip creations of American cartoonist Emil V. Abrahamian. The appearance of Abrahamian's cartoon creations will be the beginning of a weekly cartoon series which will be prepared exclusively for Arab

News with a special Middle East emphasis. The Spacers depicts, in cartoon form and in a very humorous manner, the daily adventures, or misadventures of inhabitants who live in space and travel from galaxy to galaxy and planet to planet like a wandering 'nomadic' tribe in space.

The happy, carefree people of small stature will have a supporting cast of programmed robots who, at times, emote their very personal feelings and add to the hilarity and enjoyment of the reader. The Spacers whiz around using funny flying belts or their little space ships as a means of travel and rely on their inventiveness, intelligence and wit to try to cope with any given situation.

The Spacers will be joined by several other exclusive cartoons by Abrahamian, Stumpy Stumbler, the antics of an enterprising and clever Arab boy; The Sports File, a fascinating look at unusual facts and uncommon events from the world of sports; Space Shot, an illustrated look at the past, present and future of space flight; and Animal Chatter, a laugh-filled look at the world through the observations of some zany critters.

The Sports File is a new cartoon that depicts in pictorial form uncommon and unusual facts about professional and amateur athletes of the past and present. This feature is a compelling and fascinating series which includes the exploits of the great Sac and Fox Indian Jim Thorpe, selected as the greatest athlete of the century in 1950 by a poll of sportswriters, to shot-putter Robert Garrett, who competed in the discus-throw event in the 1896 Olympics at Athens, Greece with amazing

One of Abrahamian's Sports File cartoons, a profile of football quarterback-turnedcongressman Jack Kemp, received extraordinary attention when Congressman Kemp requested the original artwork and hung it in his office on Capitol Hill.

Cartooning was begun by Abrahamian as a sideline to his career as an industrial illustrator and artist. He began working in a small home studio near Buffalo, New York and soon what began as a hobby turned into a lucrative second career. His work was soon syndicated and the cartoonist received national attention.

Abrahamian says his cartoons are an extension of his childhood when he "used to copy cartoons from the local paper."

MELBOURNE TOWN HALL: Last October when the town hall in Melbourne, Australia was dedicated commonwealth heads of government also made plans for their Jan. 26 Australian National Day.

National Day celebrated

Most Australians live in the cities, beef, sugar, wheat lead its exports

Cove on January 26, 1788, Captain Arthur Phillip established the first European settlement in Australia. This year the Australians celebrate the 194th anniversary of that landing. About 1,050 people arrived in the First Fleet - 750 of them convicts, 200 marines, with the remainder being officers, women and children.

Though Australia is distant from Europe, the majority of its population of 14.8 million are of European descent. Australia extends over 30 parallels of latitude and has wide variations of climate. The vast distances and related communications problems have played an important part in shaping the country's development, with fewer than two people per square kilometer of land.

Most Australians are city dwellers living around the seaboard, with less than 15 percent in rural areas. Australia in the 20th Century is among the world's leaders in modern technology, the arts and sport. It is the world's largest exporter of beef, the equal second largest exporter of sugar and the third largest exporter of wheat. It is also a significant supplier of other food products, including dairy produce and fruit, ind is the largest exporter of wool. There are about 176,000 rural properties in Australia. These cover about 492 million ha (1215 million acres), or 64 percent of the nation's total land area. In contrast with many other countries, about 91 percent of all rural land is in its natural state and is of limited use. It is mainly used for grazing by cattle and sheep. Australia is doing much to help overcome the world's food problem. The National Farmers Federation has estimated that each Australian farm, on average, produces sufficient food for 70 people. In the United States the figure is 59, and in Westem Europe, 19. As a major food exporter, Australia feels a special responsibility to provide food aid, particularly in emergencies and to lowncome, food-deficit countries. More than $A100 million has been allocated for expenditure on bilateral and multilateral food aid programs in 1981-82, representing an increase of almost 15 percent on food aid provided in 1980-81.

Australia has accepted a commitment under an international agreement — the Food Aid Convention (FAC) — to provide a minimum of 400,000 tons of food grain each year. This year its food grain aid will be about 445,000 tons. In 1981-82, 320,000 tons of the FAC commitment will be given to governments or international relief agencies as wheat, flour or rice to assist more than 20 developing countries in Asia and Africa. Rural production in Australia has risen substantially since World War II. The expansion has been accompanied by a marked increase in average farm size and increased use of machinery, fuel, fertilizers and pesti-At the same time, the wider application of scientific and technical advances relating to soil fertility, pasture production and crop yields has resulted in increased productivity. As a result, greater farm output is being achieved with fewer farmers. The Asian-Pacific area has become the primary focus of Australia's agricultural trade. Japan is Australia's most important market and during the 1970s imported as much as 29 percent of Australia's total agri-

Growth in the Japanese market has been especially notable for a wide range of commodities, including beef, mutton, cheese, casein, skim milk powder, wheat, barley, sorghum, sugar, canned fruit, hides and

The other major development in the pattern of Australia's food exports has been an expansion in shipments to the developing countries, the value of which in 1970-80 totalled $A3.2 billion, or nearly half of total Exports of agricultural commodities to

North America (particularly beef to the United States) increased steadily during the 1950s and 1960s, but the relative importance has declined in recent years.

Other growth areas for Australian agricultural products have been the centrally planned countries and the oil rich countries of the Middle East.

Although Australia enjoys comparative advantages in the production of many agricultural commodities, export markets for some are limited by policies of agricultural protection in importing countries. The Australian government participates in international arrangements designed to improve access to overseas markets and to help stabi lise world prices.

Wheat

Wheat is Australia's most important crop in terms of area, value of output and value of exports. The average area sown to wheat is now around 11 million ha (27.17 million acres), more than half of the area sown to annual crops. Output in the past three years has averaged 15 million tons. Projection for the next five years is as much as 20-24 million tons, and 30 million tons by the year

Australia exports to about 60 countries. The most important export markets include China, Japan, Egypt and the Soviet Union, while increasing qualities of wheat are being sold to the Middle East and developing countries such as Indonesia, Malaysia, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh.

In addition to commercial sales, Australia provides at least 400,000 tons of grain (mostly wheat) each year to developing

Coarse Grains

The major coarse grain produced in Aus! tralia is barley. In the past three years production averaged 3.5 million tons with an average value of $A396 million. The value of barley exports in the same period averaged $A255 million. Japan and the Middle East are the main markets.

Oats production in recent years has averaged about 1.4 million tons. . . ith about 30 percent of the crop exported.

The summer grain crops maize and grain sorghum are grown mainly in Queensland and New South Wales. In 1980-81 sorghumproduction totaled a little over one million tons and maize 110,000 tons. More than half of the sorghum crop has been exported in most recent years, mainly to Japan, while most of the maize produced is retained for use in Australia.

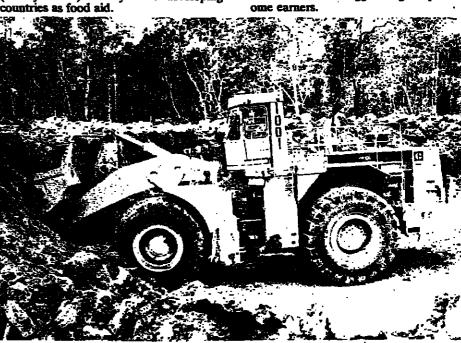

In 1980-81 the value of sugar production in Australia was $A805 million, making it Australia's second most important crop. About 95 percent of Australia's sugar production comes from Queensland, with the remainder from New South Wales.

Australia's wide climatic variations allow cultivation of many types of fruit and vegetables, the value of which totaled $A1 billion in 1980-81. Most of this production is consumed on the domestic market although there are significant exports of dried vine fruits, apples, peaches and pears.

Australian beef production peaked in 1977-78 at 2.2 million tons, By 1980-81 output had fallen to 1.5 million tons, valued at $A2100 million.

Australia is currently the world's largest beef exporter, accounting for 40 percent of total world exports. In 1980-81 exports totalled 500,000 tons product weight.

Wool is one of Australia's leading rural industries. In most years wool has been the major agricultural export earner and is still one of Australia'a biggest single export inc-

Parks, squares busy at 5 or 6 a.m. Rise early to enjoy Chinese tours

PEKING (ONS) — There is only one trick to getting the most out of your package tour to China; be an early riser. Chinese social life is conducted as it was in the days before there was electricity (of course, in some rural areas, there still isn't any). Up at dawn and to bed with the sun is all too often the maxim upon which the Chinese act.

In Peking the parks and public squares fill up between 5 and 6 a.m. The masses are doing their calisthenics, practicing the ancient art of shadow-boxing, playing musical instruments, giving their caged birds an airing or just going for a walk around the block.

The worst aspect of Chinese early rising, at least so far as the tourist is concerned, is that meal-times are geared to this schedule. Even in restaurants.

Breakfast at seven is normal and 6 a.m. is not out of the ordinary. It's worth getting up for. And for heaven's sake, insist on a Chinese breakfast. There are always a certain number of non-experimenters on every tour and for some reason they all draw the line of culinary daring at breakfast.

It is the meal most unlike our own, and perfectly delicious. To start with , the Chinese consume virtually no dairy produce, so there's no butter for the soggy toast, and no milk for the decaffeinated coffee. Or rather, the butter and milk that are offered ought to be treated with the greatest suspicion. The toughened dried-out egg mixture and the squishy steamed 'cake' that are invariably given to the masochists who ask for Western breakfast are what they deserve for their lack of imagination.

They could, after all, be eating what the Chinese eat: rice gruel, called congee, watery, unsaited and bland. Horrid by itself, but don't worry, it is intended as a vehicle for bits of spicy pickle, smoked fish, fried peanuts, chicken with chillis, deep fried bites of meat or bean curd, or even tiny portions of some of the best dishes of last night's dinner. You've never lived until you've had chillis for breakfast; you wake up, and you stay awake.

Many hotel dining rooms will also serve dim sum for breakfast - steamed or fried savoury dumplings with the most delicious fillings of minced pork, ginger and garlic or prawns and water chestnut, for example. Sometimes there are even sweet steamed buns. And in the north, deep-fried cakes like long dough-nuts, to be dipped in sugar and

All wonderful. And an early breakfast makes it possible to eat lunch - and be grateful for it - around noon. Lunch is often a substantial meal, and it is useful, anyway, to be on the same time-table as your hosts. This is most evident in the evenings, when dinner, even in smart restaurants, begins between five and six, and is over by seven. More than once guides have had to plead to get group out of the restaurant by 7:30 p.m. at the latest, as the waiters will have to be up very early next morning. So if you don't rise with the lark, you risk spoiling your own day and digestion as well.

Most package tours are not strong on restaurants, which is a pity. The Chinese are a nation of diners-out, and their restaurants are very important, sometimes historic institutions. Every tourist has a Peking duck banquet at one of the vast restaurants in the capital that serve nothing else.

But there are restaurants in every small town in China; and though standards vary so much that no tourist who wasn't starving could bring himself to eat at the least inviting of the people's eateries, you can tell simply by looking whether the food will be disgusting. Every restaurant that caters to tourists has a less salubrious room where the natives themselves eat, excepting only those few restaurants that are too small to segregate the visitors. But, as the experienced Chinatraveler will tell you, this really is for your comfort and is less sinister than it sounds.

If you stop first in Hong Kong, you can buy a little guide, Eating Out In China by Harry Rolnik. It is a pity to leave China without having made a fair sampling of its restaurants, especially in Canton, where there are some of the most beautiful dining rooms in the world.

And the food is famously good in the eastern cities of Suzhou, Yangzhou and Hangzhou, as well as in Canton, and almost everywhere in the provinces of Sichuan and Hunan.

A final word of advice concerning "evening entertainment". This euphemism covers everything from the Peking Opera to regional acrobats. The acrobatic shows are wonderful - but the Chinese seem unable to distinguish between acrobatics proper, and what we would call magic shows. So unless you've a passion for seeing flowerpots produced from silk scarves, you'd be well advised to ascertain that your "evening entertainment" really is worth watching. "Evening entertainment" precludes eating out; and there is usually much more fun and enlightenment to be obtained from going to a restaurant than from witnessing even the best tricks of another 19 conjurers.

NEW DELHI (PTI) - India ranks third in the world export of diamonds. Meeting 70 percent of world demand for small diamonds, the industry in India enjoys a competitive edge over other exporting countries. The cutting industry, which uses a high labor-capital ratio, thrives on cheap labor available in abundance in the country.

The equipment employed by the workmen is simple, costing no more than Rs. 2500 ($250) in the aggregate, cutting of small diamonds requiring greater labor is uneconomical in Western Europe as labor charges often exceed production cost targets. In Amsterdam, diamond coated bronze saws take an average of eight hours a carat to cut through this hardest mineral.

In India, diamond cutting is done mostly inthe industrial towns of Surat, Navsari and Bhavnagar in Gujrat State with Bombay city specializing in the processing of large diamo-

The year 1978-79 saw a record performance in the export of diamonds valued at Rs. 692.94 crores ($692 million). The target for 1981-82 has been fixed at Rs. 700 crores ($700 million) which is likely to be achieved as the April-October period contributed over half the targeted amount.

Japan and other buyers. Only part of the sales is effected through Indian firms in Antwero. To boost the export of large diamonds a government-sponsored delegation was sent to Western Europe and the United Kingdom.

It recommended the creation of special cells in banks and the extension of credit facilities to facilitate a switch from the small to the requirements of the large diamond industry.

The yield of polished diamonds at present is around 25 percent for the rough. For better shaped roughs the yield goes up to 35 percent and even higher.

Italians denounce Soviet reproach

An editorial in the Italian party newspaper L'unita said it would reply in full Tuesday to criticism by the Soviet Communist daily Pra vda made Sunday. The Pravda attack was the toughest ever directed against the Italian Communists and was seen as threatening relations spanning 60 years between the two

L 'unita reprinted the full text of the unsianed Pravda article, which fiercely denoun-I the Italian party leadership under Enrica Berlinguer for denigrating the Soviet contribution to world socialism. The paper accused Italian Communist leaders of favoring what it called right-wing extremists from the Polish independent trade union Solidarity and dismissed Berlinguer's call for greater freedoms in eastern Europe.

Hitler planned giant railway across Europe, says author

BONN, Jan. 25 (AP) — Adolf Hitler's megalomania did not stop at giant rallies and oversize buildings, a new book has revealed. Hitler wanted to leave his mark on railways too — building a giant network of outsize tracks more than 9 feet (3 meters) wide from Russia to France.

The wagons running on them were to be eight times the size of traditional carriages, equipped and built like houses. The ceiling of the dining car was to be more than 16 feet (5 meters) high, the restaurant itself would feed 130 of the train's 1,728 passengers at

The man who has now disclosed these and other details of the outsize project. Munich railway official Anton Joachimsthaler. first stumbled across the Fuehrer's plans for a giant railway three years ago.

According to a review in the West German magazine Stern, Joachimsthaler crisscrossed East and West Germany researching his book, just builder the title The Breitspu rbahn (wide track railway) of Hitler." The book says Hitler first hit upon the idea in 1941 in the euphoria of his initial success in battling Josef Stalin's Russia.

The late Albert Speer, chronicler of Hitler's megalomania after World War II and architect of the Fuehrer's plans to rebuild Berlin and other cities as monuments to his own glory, said giant stations planned for the outsize railway should "overcome or, rather, literally 'hit' (travelers) with the power of the Reich." In May 1942, Hitler ordered his transport ministry to work on plans for the outsize railway. Right until the end of World War II. planners slaved over the project - probably, as the Stern reviewer noted, saving their lives in the process since the work exempted them from military service.

The plans uncovered by Joachimsthaler eventually spun a network that was to link Paris to Moscow and Leningrad via Berlin. with branch lines connecting southward to Marseilles, Vienna and Belgrade, to Kiev, Rostov and the Black and Caspian seas. The planners eventually persuaded the Fuehrer to accept that visions of a gauge up to 16 feet (5 meters) wide were unrealistic, and he settled for tracks 9.75 feet (3 meters)

But, Stern said, the engineers were not able to prevent an order in April 1943 that directed them to do away with the overhead electric cable which would power the giant train. The electricity supply must be from the side or from below, Hitler commanded. He wanted to be able to use the train to transport munitions, and tanks and other equipment might get snarled in overhead power lines.

The incident offers further evidence of the megalomania first revealed in Speer's detailed memoirs of the Third Reich. According to Stern, Joachimsthaler sees this obsession with bigger being better in the railway project. "Everything's just big: technically, there is not much new," the magazine quoted the author as saying.

Hormones help protect women from cancer

CHAPEL HILL, North Carolina, Jan. 25 (AP) - University of North Carolina scientists say they have new evidence that oral contraceptives containing the hormone progestin as well as estrogen can help protect women from cancer of the uterus lining.

The study, published in the current issue of The Journal of the American Medical Associat ion, indicates that women who not use combination product oral contraceptives have at least twice the risk of developing endometrial cancer as those who do. The protective effect of the contraceptives increases the longer they are used and decreases once they have been discontinued, according to the report.

Estrogen is the female sex hormone. Progestins are a group of hormones secreted by the placenta and in the ovaries. Authors of the study are Barbarais Hulka, Lloyd S. Chambless and Bernard G. Greenberg of the UNC School of Public Health and David G. Kaufman and Wesley C. Fowler of the School of Medicine.

Miss Hulka, a professor of epidemiology. said the findings do not mean that women should begin taking oral contraceptives in the hope of avoiding endomentrial cancer.

"That's because endometrial cancer is even less common than the uncommon side effect of oral contraceptives, which is the occasional formation of blood clots," she said. Normally, this cancer is a disease of older women after they have reached menopause.

Reddy regrets disregard of moral values

NEW DELHI, Jan. 25 (AFP) - President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy Monday appealed to all political parties in India to do some heartsearching to bring about a regeneration of moral values in public life.

"Unless we take immediate action to arrest the disregard of moral values in public life. people's faith in our political system will be undermined with consequences which are too frightening to contemplate." he warned. The president was making his customary broadcast to the nation on the eve of the country's 33rd Republic Day. He said it was his last broadcast, as he is leaving office in July after completing his five-year term.

Reddy said the nation had reason to feel satisfied that its democratic system had been working satisfactorily, and added, "the sad experience of countries which have been subject to continued political turmoil must serve as a warning to us". The president also spoke on other matters such as the government's economic achievements, difficulties faced by farmers and the unemployment situation.

Ovamboland is home to 450,000 people, nearly half of Namibia's total population. Twice last year — first in August and then in November - the South African Army and indigenous troops struck at what Pretoria claimed were bases of Sam Nujoma's Southwest Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) in southern Angola, inflicting heavy losses and capturing a large quantity of war materials.

Since then, the number of SWAPO raids in Namibia have diminished, but the number of land mine attacks has risen sharply and local residents now fear that a new, and more anonymous, form of guerrilla warfare has appea-

A single road exists from the Ovamboland district. It is the 200-km-long OshivelaOshakati axis, which is "opened" eacn morning by the South African Army. At 7:30 a.m. local time, a convoy of trucks and private cars heads down the road, preceded by anti-mine vehicles stuffed full of soldiers.

Schooled by their own experience and that of the Rhodesians, the South Africans have built a series of specially designed minesweeping vehicles aimed at giving the troops the maximum chance of surviving a mine explosion. Perched high above its wheels, this vehicle has a reinforced protective bottom and armored windows.

The convoy moves slowly down the road, Some of the more impatient drivers race ahead on their own.

However, SWAPO fighters have sometimes in the past attacked such convoys, including trucks bearing inflammable liquids. On Jan. 7, one of the missionaries' ambulances hit a mine and was blown up. Three persons, including a pregnant woman, were killed and seven were seriously injured. All the victims were Ovambos.

Four days later, Mika Iilonga was killed in similar fashion near Ongandjera while he was carrying medicine and other goods to the

As a customary precaution, drivers try to stay on newly made tracks, in hopes that if the previous vehicle managed to pass safely, then they will have similar luck. Spain toxic illness baffles medical men foreign medical experts are still completely baffled over the toxic agent in the cheap cooking oil which in nine months has caused 250 deaths and affected 17,000 persons leaving 400 of them paralyzed.

While there is general agreement that adulterated cooking oil is the cause of the tragedy, there is still a mystery about the actual toxic agent which caused it. Jose Martinez Genique, secretary of state for consumer affairs, has pointed out that the government still considers that the oil was "a vehicle" for the illness, but that other possible causes had not

Soviet general foresees U.S. threat to peace

MOSCOW, Jan. 25 (AFP) - The administration in Washington is heading for "a direct confrontation with the Soviet Union at both regional and world levels." Gen. Valentin Varennikov said Monday.

Speaking at a news conference held to introduce a Soviet Defense Ministry report on East-West military potential, the Soviet official said the United States was "still banking on preparations for a war involving strategic nuclear weapons." The report is entitled Who is Threatening Peace?'

He dismissed outright the possibility of any "limited" nuclear engagement, "Such a conflict could only turn into a world nuclear conflict," he added. He said there was approximate parity between the Warsaw Pact and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NAT-O), and added that the Soviet Union was doing nothing to upset the established strategic balance in the world"

We are convinced that it is in the interest of both the United States and the Soviet Union to reach an understanding on the limitation of arms and on their drastic reduction," he said, "We believe world opinion is able to localize where the threat to peace is really coming from."

Gen. Varennikov warned that the Soviet Union had a "considerable military potential" and that "any attempt to obtain supremacy over it is doomed to failure."

50 die in Thai-Burma border drug war

BANGKOK, Jan. 25 (Agencies) - At least 50 persons have been killed in a running battle between Thai border police and the 1.000-strong private army of a Burmese drug smuggler, Thailand's top police official said

The drive began last week when the police. backed by helicopter gunships, moved against the army of drug warlord Chang Chee-fu. a Burmese national of Chinese origin who operates heroin refining factories along the rugged Thai-Burmese border. At least 10 tons of arms and other equipment, including automatic weapons, rifles, grenade launchers and medical supplies have been seized from the private army's stronghold, Police Director General Suraphol Chulaphram told repo-

He said 32 rebels had so far been found dead and another 50 were believed to have been killed. Police casualties were 16 dead and 45 seriously wounded. The police chief said he had information that an unknown number of Chang's rebels on the Burmese side of the border plan to retaliate against Thai forces.

Meanwhile, Thai officials said Monday that a continuing, five-day battle against one of the Kingpins of the heroin trade in the 'golden triangle" will result in a sharp reduction of the drug on the world's illicit markets.

Chulaphram told a news conference that skirmishing continued Monday in the rugged Thai-Burmese frontier region of Thailand's Chiang Rai province. The police chief indicated that sharp fighting might again erupt since Chang Chee-fu had sent some 1,000 soldiers from another border area to reinforce his battered forces near Baan Hin Taek.

Baan Hin Tack, just inside Thai territory, has been a longtime stronghold of Chang Chee-fu, who claims to be leading a liberation struggle of the Shan ethnic minority against the central government in Burma. But Thai and Western narcotics sources believe he controls as much as three-quarters of the trade in opium, from which heroin is refined in the border area of Thailand, Burma and Laos known as the "golden triangle." Last year the triangle produced roughly 600 tons of opium, or 60 tons of heroin, which flooded markets in Western Europe, the United States and Asia.

Gen. Pao Sarasin, who heads Thailand's narcotics control board, told the news conference that the Thai strike against Baan Hin Taek, which began last Thursday, could reduce the heroin outflow from Chang Chee-fu's operation by as much as 50 percent.

Chulaphram said "We learned a lesson from the past when as soon as we started planning an attack he would withdraw (to Burma)," "This time he did not know about the attack and took a big blow."

For years, Chang Chee-fu had been allowed to move back and forth across the Thai-Burmese border with impunity, In fact, a Thai border patrol police unit was stationed near Baan Hin Tack and maintained a liveand-let-live relationship with the Shan Uni-

But in 1980, a warrant was issued for his arrest and his position inside Thailand became more precarious. N.Korea attacks Chun's remark

TOKYO. Jan. 25 (AFP) — North Korea has strongly criticized South Korean President Chun Doo-Hwan for what it called "treasonable" attempts at creating tension on the Korean peninsula.

Pyongyamg radio, monitored here, quoted an editorial Sunday in the North Korean Workers' Party organ Rodon Shinum as critical of a Chun remark Jan. 21 that North Korea was intensifying preparation for an all-out war against South Korea. The remark was a "provocation against North Korea." the editorial said.

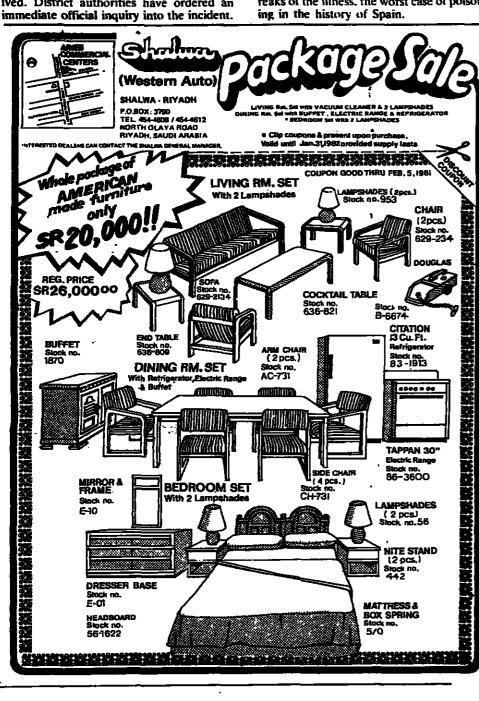

The newspaper said: "When we North Korean people were endeavoring to achieve the peaceful unification of Korea, President Chun created tension by appealing to the South Korean people to prepare for an "imaginary military invasion' from the North. This is an unpardonable treasonous act."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP) — President Ronald Reagan is waiting until the last minute to tip his hand on whether he will side with White House advisers telling him tax increases are the only way to check the ballooning federal deficit.

The president set aside most of Monday atternoon to work on the State of the Union speech he will deliver Tuesday night to a joint session of the House and Senate and a nationwide television and radio audience.

That speech is likely to provide the first public word on whether he will seek higher taxes on gasoline and "luxury" items. That question—to tax or not to tax—has been the focus of a major battle within the administration, with the president reportedly leaning first one way then the other.

"Tune in Tuesday night." Reagan told reporters who asked him about taxes Sunday afternoon as he returned to the White House from a weekend at Camp David. But there was little doubt that one theme of the speech will be what Reagan calls his "new federalism" approach of turning over to the states scores of programs that have been administered primarily in Washington.

The president's emphasis on "federalism" will be in the speech "in some format," said Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes. election-year tax increases to trim projected deficits. That painful prospect comes within weeks of final votes on record tax and spending cuts that President Ronald Reagan and his followers in Congress had hoped would lead to a balanced budget.

"All the economic theory would say with the country in recession you don't need new taxes," Senate majority leader Howard H. Baker Jr., a Republican from Tennessee, said Sunday. "But also, every fiber of my political body says that when you're facing a $100 billion deficit you ought to try to do something about it."

Republicans and Democrats agree that election-year concern over an economy mired in recession, rising unemployment and projected record budget deficits will make it more difficult for Reagan to get this session of Congress to do his economic bidding. That atmosphere also could make it difficult for Congress to take any substantive action.

"It's likely to be a very highly partisan, volatile year," said another Republican, James R. Jones of Oklahoma, chairman of the House Budget Committee. "In a condition like that, responsibility and substance usually take a back seat."

"From the information we have the frost was more or less the same as last year," he told Reuters. "It's true we have to wait a few more days to verify the extent of the damage. but it has to be good news for Brazil." However, Kraus warned that the frost had only taken care of current over-production and said Brazilian farmers should show good sense and not rush out and plant more fruit

"We have to look at things realistically," he said in an interview. "The market grows gradually and our production has grown disproportionately.

Most of Brazil's oranges are grown in the rolling hills of Sao Paulo state, around the Tropic of Capricorn. The frosts which occasionally wreak havoc on southern Brazil's coffee or sugar crops rarely cause even slight damage to orange trees.

In the 1970/1971 crop year Sao Paulo's citrus production was 1.84 million tons, according to IEA figures. But 10 years later it had shot up to 7.35 million tons. The boom years for planting were between 1975 and 1978, caused partly by government reforestation incentives which made planting of perennial fruit trees profitable, Miranda Dos Anjos said. The incentives were later removed when authorities became concerned at the prospects of overproduction, and planting levels fell sharply from 1979, he said.

To bolster economy

Comecon urges war on waste

VIENNA, Jan. 25 (R) — As the world recession and high energy costs hit Eastern Europe. Soviet allies in the Communist trading bloc Comecon are stressing reform and war on waste to boost their economic performance.

Western diplomats and economic analysts here and in Eastern Europe said they expect a further slowing of Comecon economies this year, although East Germany could once again prove the exception. The Polish crisis rules out any firm predictions about economic developments there and, to a lesser extent, in its partners both because of the political uncertainty it has caused and the economic turmoil it has led to, they said.

A major brake on Comecon economies is the cut in Soviet energy supplies, they said. Senior Hungarian economic sources said last year that East bloc countries, except Poland, had been told to expect a reduction of 10 percent in Soviet energy deliveries.

The Soviet Union has cut energy deliveries because of rising costs of production in Siberia, a weakened world oil market and because it has diverted oil to Poland to its economy.

The loss of Soviet oil to Warsaw is only one of the adverse effects that the Polish economic collapse has had on its Comecon partners. Difficulties in delivering goods which may have been ordered by Poland years earlier have disrupted the inflexible centrally planned economies.

Warrange status line billion to proper its one

Warsaw's virtual inability to repay its enormous Western debt, now estimated at more than $28 billion, has made many Western bankers reluctant to lend to other East European countries and deprived them of an important source of finance.

And Poland's political and social upheavals provide a grim warning of what may happen when a country cannot keep its people contented. However, one analyst here warned against attributing the difficulties experienced this year by most European countries to disruption in Poland. The problems caused by the loss of an expected load of Polish coal only serves to highlight a Comecon country's lack of foreign earnings and its inability to buy energy on the free market, he said.

The traditional Communist bloc means for growth, based on heavy capital spending and relaying on earnings from Western trade, foreign borrowing and energy, are limited.

Party newspaper Pravda commented: "Cocom was set up in the dark days of the cold war. It has been and remains an instrument for sabotaging business relations between the West and the Socialist countries."

It recalled: "Cocom's activities were reduced during the years of detente, but today the U.S. Pentagon and State Department have decided to resurrect this specter of the cold war and use it to increase sabotage of the economic ties between the capitalist and Socialist countries, under the pretext of events in

Ship planned with sails set by computer

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AFP) - A 30,000 ton sailing ship taking bulk cargo across the Atlantic, with its sails set by computer, is planned by the Cockerill Shipyard in Belgian. Lloyd's List seported Monday.

Japan brought a 1,500 ton said-powered oil tanker, the Shin-Aitoka Maru, into service in 1980. But this will be a much bigger vessel, said Lloyd's List, which is put out by the giant British insurance company.

The Swedish firm Navire Cargo Geat of Goteborg will participate in the venture to design the man-made fiber sails and the steel masts. The Japanese tanker's sails are in plastic. The European Economic Community (EEC) will probbably be asked for financial support. Crusing speed across the Atlantic is expected to be 12 knots, but in gales the speed could rise to 20 knots, perhaps more.

Each mast will carry 10 sails, but the number of masts has yet to be decided. All sail adjustments will be made with the aid of a computer from the deck.

TOKYO, Jan. 25 (AP) - Japan and the European Economic Community (EEC) Monday started four days of meetings that precede high-level consultations to start Friday on ways to reduce Europe's large trade deficit with Japan, officials said.

The talks, held bi-annually to review bilateral trade, are being held at a time when Japan's trade surplus with the 10-nation community is at a record high. Japanese figures put the advantage at $10.3 billion, up 10.8 percent over 1980.

The Brussels-based EEC commission calculates the deficit nearer to $15 billion. Officials here explain the discrepancy to differences in accounting.

The delegation of the political committee of the parliament, headed by West German Kai-Uwe Von Hassel, will discuss last month's suspension of European Economic Community (EEC) aid to Turkey's military government, officials said.

The European Paliament last Friday demanded the suspension of EEC aid to Turkey until respect for human and civil rights and democratic liberties is once again restored." He said the vote was a hasty one and was taken as the parliament session was ending Friday when most of the members were absent.

The delegation will draw up a report on Turkey to be submitted to the full parliament after it has been discussed by the political committee.

The group will meet head of state General Kenan Evren, the chairman of the Turkish consultative assembly. Sadi Irmak. Foreign Minister liter Turkmen and Defense Minister Haluc Bayulken.

SAS strike in Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 25 (AP) - Striking Scandinavian Airlines (SAS) employees lifted a blockade Monday of all SAS flights from Copenhagen, but incoming flights were not likely to resume until Tuesday at the earliest, airline officials said.

An SAS press spokeswoman said nonstriking ground personnel were readying about 20 airplanes grounded by the Monday morning action for delayed departures in the afternoon

She said the 1,600 strikers announced only that they were lifting their blockade of SAS flights, but gave no indication when the strike might be over.

SAS officials said they had no idea when normal service out of Copenhagen could be resumed for SAS a joint company of the national airlines of Denmark, Norway and

The blockade started in the morning as airplane mechanics, technicians and freight handlers refused to service SAS departures at Kastrup Airport.

By early afternoon, SAS officials announced they were stopping all incoming SAS flights by rerouting them to other Scandinavian and north European airports. A SAS press spokeswoman said the action stranded or delayed thousands of SAS passengers in Copenhagen and other points although the airline was trying to find seats for their customers on other airlines which were not directly affected by the blockade. She said SAS on weekdays flies in and out of Kastrup Airport about 200 times.

The action by SAS Copenhagen-based blue collar employees was a protest after two weeks of talks broke down last Friday over a pay dispute between the wage earning personnel and SAS management. A spokesman for the workers, Bjarne Larsen, said he had no idea how long the strike would last.

Dollar chalks up big gains

By J.H. Hammond

JEDDAH, Jan. 25 — The dollar opened on a strong note on Monday in the European markets, and maintained its strength for most of the day against the other major currencies. The yen fell sharply to 229,00 levels from 227.10 closing levels on Friday. While the British pound dropped another cent to the dollar.

In the bullion markets, gold continued its downward drift to trade at $370 per ounce which takes it down another $7 in the past week. In the local markets, riyal deposit rates remained firm but surprisingly with few transactions being reported out of Jeddah. Short tenors continued to be in de mand however and dealers were awaiting to see if the dollar's rally could be sustained in New York Monday night. Eurodollar interest rate rises were the key factors Monday, as it had been throughout the past week, in pushing the dollar up against all other currencies. Despite a modest rise in the money supply figures for last Friday, most money market operators were still calculating the effects of the huge increase in money supply the previous week ($9 billion increase) and the shock waves it sent throughout the market. Federal Reserve Board "Fed Funds" rates have not come down below 13 percent since the release of those large money supply figures, and most market watchers expect to see an increase in commercial bank prime lending rates soon. At present, these range from 151/4 to 151/2 percent amongst leading U.S. Banks. The dollar was also affected by the interest lowering trend that seems to have affected some European countries — notably Britain and West Germany. This has led to an interest differential favoring the dollar, of more than 3 percent in most tenors. The one year dollar rate is now quoted at 15%-16 percent while in the short tenors, the one month is quoted at 14½-14% per-

In the European bourses, the German mark fell back to 2.3390 levels at one stage Monday, against 2.30 levels at weekend, The British pound also fell back to 1.8510 levels from 1.8650 earlier in the day. Similar gains were registered by the dollar against the French franc (5.9410), the Swiss franc (1.8680) and the Japanese yen (229.75). The yen in particular seems to be receding toward the 230 levels after it seemed that the Japanese currency would stay firm from the New Year levels of 216.00 that it reached then.

In the local markets, spot riyal/dollar rates were quoted at 3.4195-05 for most of the day, with surprisingly few deals being struck despite the dollar's rises on the European exchanges; Commercial demand for the dollar was reported as "moderate" and dealers were cautious is not pushing up their bid rates for the dollar throughout the day. This mood of cautiousness also characterized the money markets, and despite some rises in short-term fund rates, rival deposit levels remained unchanged. One-month JIBOR levels opened at 13%-14% percent, but went down by about 1/8 percent by close of the trading session. One-week fixed-fund rates were traded at 121/2-13 percent while the one-year rate opened at 13%-14% per-

BEIRUT, Jan. 25 (AP) - Iran has proposed loaning $541 million to Japan to resume construction of the $3 billion petrochemical project in southern Iran, Iran's official news agency reported Monday

It quoted the undersecretary of the Iranian Oil Ministry Mostafa Taheri, as saying in an interview with the daily economic newspaper Bours, that the loan would be paid to continue building the last 15 percent of the plant in the port city of Bandar Khomeini, plus damages rendered to the complex by the Iran-Iraq war, now in its 16th month. The site has been bombed five times.

Taheri said that Oil Minister Muhammad Gharazi will hold talks with the Japanese Mitsui group and other shareholders soon in Tehran. It will be the third round of talks since the suspension of the construction shortly after the 1979 revolution in Iran. Japan. however, has not given its response to the loan offer, Taheri said adding that the Japanese partners lacked funds.

Taken together, the new Algerian contract and the accord signed Friday with the Soviet Union for supplies from a planned Siberian pipeline will ensure about 55 percent of France's gas needs in the second half of this

While the Algerian deal is expected to go through without controversy, the contract with Moscow has provoked condemnation from both right and left-wing critics who see it conflicting with France's attitude to events in Poland. The 25-year contract, signed in the face of calls by the United States for reduced trade with the Soviet Union, was attacked as inopportune by the CFDT Trade Union Confederation, the government's main union ally. The influential newspaper Le Monde said the agreement, under which France will receive an additional eight billion cubic meters of

Smid nips Sadri in final

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25 (AP) - Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia staged a strong comsack Sunday against American John Sadri win the $300,000 World Championship Tunnis Tournament.

Down two sets to one. Smid won a fourthset tiebreaker 7-6 and broke Sadri's serve twice in the fifth set to take the match 3-6. 7-6, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 and $100,000 in prize money. Sadri picked up $40,000.

Until the decisive set, Sadri hadn't lost a serve in three straight matches during the week-long tournament at Mexico City's Indoor Juan de la Barrera Arena.

"He didn't serve that well in the fifth set." Smid said. "He wasn't serving that hard and I was returning well. He was missing the first serve and I was returning the second serve and he got scared to keep missing. I returned much better than in the beginning of the match." Sadri commented: "I'd gone three hours and hadn't lost my serve and I was behind. It was frustrating."

In the doubles final, Sherwood Stewart and Ferdi Taygan of United States defeated a tired Smid and his Hungarian partner Balazs Taroczy 6-4, 7-5.

In the Davis Cup match, Paraguay, coming from behind, won the last two matches to beat Uruguay 3-2 in their American Zone.

Paraguayan No. 1 Victor Pecci, who surprisingly lost the opening singles to Jose-Luis Damiani, needed four sets to beat Diego Perez to level the match 2-2 then Francisco Ganzalez defeated Damiani in straight sets to clinch victory.

Paraguay now play Ecuadorgn, winners over Brazil, in the southern section final. The winners play the winners of the northern section, either Canada or Colombia, for a place in next year's top-flight non-zonal competi-

Pecci started well against Perez, dropping only one game in the first set, he lost the next 5-7 and had to dig in to win the third 8-6. He took the last set 6-4. The turning point came Sunday when Pecci and Gonzalez won a tough five set doubles match to pull back to

Meanwhile. Colombia shutout the team of Bahamas and Jamaica 5-0 and will face Canada in the next round of the American zone competition.

Sunday's matches were a formality since Colombia clinched its victory Saturday, when it took an insurmountable 3-0 lead. In Sunday's matches, Jose Alejandro Cortes of Colombia defeated Adrian Clarke 6-1, 6-4, in the fourth match of the series.

In the final match, seventeen-year-old Luis Arturo Gonzalez of Colombia, who played at No. 1 in place of Jairo Velasco, defeated Leo Rolle of Caribbean Islands in a grueling three-hour match, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

PHOENIX. Arizona, Jan. 25 (AP) -American Lanny Wadkins spiced an 8-under-par 63 with a hole-in-one and surged into a four-stroke lead Sunday in the third round of the rain-delayed, $300,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament. Wadkins' effort, composed in warm sunshine and matching the best on the pro tour this season, gave him a 198 total — 15 shots under par on the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course — going into Monday's final round. The tournament's schedule was thrown a full day behind when a rainstorm interrupted Thursday's play. Mortis Hatalsky, who scored the first victory of his six-year tour career last season, birdied the final hole for a 68 that put him at 202. John Cook was next at 203 after a 70.

Larry Nelson, the current PGA champion and the leader through the first two rounds, could do no better than match par 71 and topped the group of five at 204, 9-under par but six shots back of the leader going into the final round. Also at that figure were former Phoenix champion Jerry Pate, Scott Simpson, Jay Haas and Mike Reid. Simpson also had a 63 on the flat little course, Pate shot 64, Haas and Reid 66.

Larry Nelson drops badly Tom Kite, last year's leading money winner, had a 68 and was at 206. British Open champ Bill Rogers was well back at 213 after a 73. David Graham, the defending titleholder here and the current U.S. Open champ, was 76-211.

On the one side, the drivers, all but two of whom have been suspended, seem determined to push for change in the super license, with the drivers' association leader Frenchman Didier Pironi threatening to go to law. An outspoken FISA president Jean-Marie Balestre is adamant that the Grand Prix racing authorities must be respected.

On his way back to Paris, Balestre underlined his conviction that the drivers were in the wrong. Looking back over the events leading up to the South African Grand Prix, Balestre said that in the first place FISA had wanted to save the race after the race organizers had

(AP) - Eusebio Pedroza of Panama overcame one-point penalties in two rounds and scored a unanimous decision Sunday over challenger Juan Laporte of New York, retaining his World Boxing Association featherweight crown.

It was his 14th successful defense of the title, a record. The 28-year-old champion. with a 3-inch (7.6 cm) reach and height advantage, repeatedly pressured the 5-foot 5-inch (165 cm) Laporte to the ropes, where he pummeled the 22-year-old challenger with brutal combinations to the ries and right hooks into the kidneys. Laporte, who weighed 126 pounds (57.2

kg), came out strong in the early rounds, but was often impatient and threw wild punches. In the third round. Pedroza was reprimended by referee Guy Justas for stinging Lacorte with a right hook to the face after the bell sounded. Pedroza was not penalized.

Justas took a point away from Pedroza in the eighth round after warning him four times not to throw low blows and took another albows. Judge Fernando Viso of Venezuela scored the fight 144 points for Pedroza, 141 Laporte. Ove Ovesen of Denmark had it 144-142 and Marco Antonio Rodriguez of Mexico scored it 145-143.

Pedroza, in the 15-round fight at the Sands Hotel, surpassed Philadelphian Abe Attel's record of 13 successful featherweight title defenses. The 125-pound (56.7 kg) champ-ion was paid $65,000 plus an anticipated $150,000 expected from Latin American television revenues, while Laporte earned $40,000.

Pedroza never changed his stern expression, even when Puerto Rican-born Laporte opened a cut over his left eye in the eighth round. The champion, whose record stands at 33-3, responded to Laporte's attacks by keeping him at a distance with a few arms length left jabs followed by a full-strength right punch to the ribs until the challenger was on the ropes. There, Laporte, 19-3, could do little but cover his face and absorb the punishment.

rly that he never fought a dirtier fighter. "I'm not saying the low blows beat me because I don't think he won the fight. I spent too much time against the ropes because of the punches against my back." But Pedroza, who has been undefeated since July 1976, retorted, "I keep to the rules. If you are a professional, you don't cry."

Laporte, who dropped a decision to World Boxing Council featherweight champion Salvadore Sanchez 13 months ago, earned his second title fight via a second-round knockout over Rocky Lockridge last August. That victory catapulted Laporte to the No. 2 WBA ranking and No. 1 WBC position.

"Juan Laporte is a great boxer." Pedroza said through an interpreter. "I think in the future he is going to become a champion. He is strong and the most important thing is he is brave." Pedroza, who took the crown from Cecilio Lastra Dec. 5, is undefeated in 19 consecutive fights. LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP) - Tottenham Hotspur, defending champions of the English F.A. Cup, drew home advantage for the third successive time Monday in its bid to hang on to the trophy but was handed a tough fifth round opponent - league champion Aston

The Spurs-Villa clash was the outstanding tie of the round and the only game featuring two First Division sides. Tottenham has had to travel out of the capital only once in its last 17 Cup games, spanning almost two seasons. and has already eliminated north London rivals Arsenal and hard-tackling Leeds United from this year's F.A. Cup competition.

In the annual pre-season charity shield match between League Champions and Cup winner, Villa and Spurs drew 2-2 at Wembley in August. But the Midlanders won a league game 3-1 at Tottenham's White Hart Lane Stadium one month later.

In other ties, First Division leader Ipswich Town faces a tricky 90 minutes against Second Division Shrewsbury, a repeat of last year's fourth round match which ended goalless. Ipswich winning the replay. The game gives Shrewsbury, whose compact Gay Meadow ground holds just 18,000, a welcome cash boost with a full house certain. "We gave them a scare last year and we can do it again." said Shrewsbury assistant manager Graham

Liverpool also faces an away tie against Second Division opposition, traveling to eitber Chelsea or Wrexham, who replay a fourth round match Tuesday. Ipswich and Liverpool were immediately paired by the bookmakers as 3-1 favorites to win the Cup. Tottenham was next at 7-2.

Third Division Oxford United, giantkillers of the 4th round with a shock 3-0 win at Brighton, failed to get the home draw it deserved. Ian Greaves's team, away in every round of the competition so far, must travel to another First Division side — Coventry City. But Greaves was not too despondent.

It would have been good to the fans if we could have been drawn at home," said Greaves, whose club was pulled back from the brink of bankruptcy earlier this month by a major cash injection from publisher Robert Maxwell. "But if the lads play as well as they did against Brighton, they are capable of getting a result."

Coventry manager Dave Sexton, aware that only five other First Division teams are still in this year's competition, commented: "It's a good round to be at home, but we have a healthy respect for Oxford."

Watford, with two First Division scalps under its belt, could find it tougher against fellow Second Division Cup-fighters Leceister City, particularly as the game is away from Watford's right Vicarage Road Stadium where it has eliminated both Manchester United and West Ham.

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 25 (AP) -The Hungarian soccer team scored a 4-1 win over Canberra all-stars at the rain-sodden Bruce Stadium here Monday night in the first game of their Australia-New Zealand tour.

The Hungarians, without their multimillion dollar captain Tibor Nyilasi, struggled in the slippery conditions early in the first half but at no time were they in any real danger.

the Yugoslav national soccer team, said his team would play their first warm-up match against a local team next week. The squad is training in the central adriatic town of Split and will meet First Division Haiduk Split Wednesday, Miljanic said he had no immediate plans for any international warm-up games since players with foreign clubs would probably not be able to play because of commitments with their teams.

"It is useless to have warm-ups unless I can get the full team together." Miljanic said. Yugoslavia was drawn into World Cup Group Five with host country Spain. Northern Ireland and Honduras. In Tokyo, star striker Diego Maradona

As Montana strikes top form

19ers snatch maiden Super Bowl crown

PONTIAC, Michigan, Jan. 25 (AP) — Joe Montana, displaying the guile and flare of a riverboat gambler, engineered two long touchdown drives after San Francisco's youthful secondary swiped the ball from the Cincinnati Bengals, and the 49ers rolled to a 26-21 victory Sunday in Super Bowl XVI.

Montana, executing coach Bill Walsh's innovative offense with electrifying ease, and a spate of turnovers which kept Cincinnati off the scoreboard, helped the 49ers roll to a record 20-point halftime lead.

The Bengals roared to life behind quarterback Anderson in the second half scoring on his 5-yard run and two passes to tight end Dan Ross. But the difference was a goalline stand of epic proportions in the — third period by the San Francisco defense the third time Cincinnati had been denied so much as a point within 10 yards of the 49ers' end zone.

Ultimately, it was that defense that carried the 49ers to one of the most remarkable turnarounds in National Football League history. The team, which just two years ago had staggered through its second consecutive 2-14 season, reached the pinnacle this time - its first Super Bowl Championship.

Montana, in only his third year in the NFL. outplayed Anderson, his veteran counterpart on the Bengals, in the first half. He scored the 49ers first touchdown on a 1-yard dive, then passed 10 yards to fullback Earl Cooper for a second score.

Each was set up by a Cincinnati turnover deep in San Francisco territory. Free safty Dwight Hicks, the only veteran in the 49ers' secondary, intercepted on Anderson pass at

John Nunn regains top berth in chess

WIJN-AAN-ZEE, Netherlands, Jan. 25 (AP) — Britain's John Nunn regained his position as soleleader in thestandings of the 44th annual Hoogovens Chess Tournament after drawing his eighth-round game against Lubomir Kavalek of the United States Sun-

The draw, Kavalek's eighth in the tournament, came after barely two hours of play at the end of a series of 15 moves from the Gioco Piano. Holland's John Van Der Wiel, who shared the top spot with Nunn at the outset of Sunday's action, fell back to second place after losing his game against Brazilian champion Jaime Sunye-Neto.

The Brazilian played white in a subtle line from the English Opening and slowly worked his way to a superior position. Van Der Wiel tried to complicate the game, but Sunye-Neto maintained the advantage and clinched victory at his 38th.

Sharing second place with Van Der Wiel were Yuri Balashov of the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia's Vlastimil Hort. Balashov played black in a French defense to overcome New Zealand's Murray Chandler in 44 moves, while Hort had to settle for a draw with White after 29 moves from a Ruy Lopez against Yugoslavia's Pedrag Nikolic.

Holland's Hans Ree won his adjourned me from the previous mund against formerworld champion Mikhail Tali of the Soviet Union, but had to accept a draw against U.S. grandmaster Larry Christiansen in eighth-the 5-yard line and ran it out of danger to the 32. In 11 plays, one of them a flea flicker pass good for 14 yards, Montana put the 49ers on the scoreboard with 5:52 remaining in the opening period. And 21/2 minutes into the second quarter, after Anderson had drilled a pass to Cris Collinsworth at the 49ers 8-yard line, Ric Wright stripped the ball from the Cincinnati wide receiver and fellow rookie cornerback Thomas pounced on the fumble. Twelve plays later, Montana's flare pass to Cooper, climaxed the 92-yard scoring drive, the longest in Super Bowl history. It surpassed by 3 yards one by Dallas in Super Bowl XIII.

a 17-0 lead in route to their 24-7 victory over Minnesota in Super Bowl VIII.

Bengals burst throughout at the the start of the third period with quarterback Ken Anderson making five-yard scoring run after Cinc-innati had move the ball 83 yards in nine plays. They controlled the play for the third period, being stopped on the one-yard line in the final two minutes when Pete Johnson three times tried to score from just one yard

They, however, scored in the fourth minute of the final period when Anderson found tight end Dan Ross with a four-yard touchdown pass to cut the 49ers' lead to 20-14 with 20:06 to play, and San Francisco's situation was suddenly very precarious. The 49ers offense, which had turned sluggish and conservative, woke up again behind Montana's 22-yard pass to Mike Wilson and Ricky Patton's key runs to set up Wersching's third field goal, a 40-yard boomer with 5:25 to play.

Then Wright, the rookie right cornerback, nailed the spike in the Bengals' coffin, intercepting Anderson near midfield and racing 25 yards to the Cincinnati 22-yard line. From then, it was just a matter of time, and the 49ers ate it up. They stayed on the ground as the seconds ticked away, punching slowly, steadily toward the end zone.

Finally: with 1:57 to go, they put away this first snowbelt Super Bowl as Wersching kicked his fourth field goal, a 23-harder. Anderson drove the Bengals to one more score, a 3-yard pass to Ross in the middle of the end zone as the 49ers' defense laid back during the entire match, looking to avoid the bomb. Lillee, Hughes at loggerheads

iscord in Aussie team

SYDNEY, Australia Jan. 25 (AP) - Desperate to restore some prestige from the debris of the weekend's two World Series Cup defeats, Australia faces the West Indies at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Tuesday hurt over Kim Hughes statement that the Australian pacemen are too old.

The last thing the Australians need as they go into the vital third final at the SCG on Tuesday is ill feeling in a team already taking it on the chin from the West Indians. Hughes said at the end of Sunday's rout of Australia by West Indies in the heat of Melbourne Cricket ground: "Age is beginning to tell on our bowlers.'

This brought a quick rejoinder from paceman Dennis Lillee: "Kim Hughes would be better off looking at his own form before pointing the bone at me or any other of the Australian fast bowlers."

Hughes continued: "The heavy season is starting to tell on our older bowlers, who are all over 30. We need some young blokes to come in - I don't know where we are going to get them — off the beaches, anywhere." Hughes was deputising for his heat-fatigued skipper Greg Chappel and said it was time a new era of fast bowlers was found. Lillee slammed back: "Let's find a few fast bowlers around Australia who can bowl out the West Indies for 129 — and then when our batsmen can make 130 runs, we will win the match." Lillee conceded that Hughes had said the current crop had been carrying the attack for ten years. But he said that he was surprised that he had criticized the Australian fast attack - "especially after our batsmen had made two 'mammoth' scores of 130 and 107 in the two one day matches on the week-

Meanwhile, Australian selectors called brilliant Queensland stroke-maker Greg Ritchie into a now 13-strong squad. Ritchie, a 22-year-old right hander, is a real basher and his inclusion suggests Australia will fight fire with fire Tuesday night.

Ritchie has been added to the Australian squad because of doubts over whether Kim Hughes will play. Hughes is in severe doubt with a badly bruised big toe on one foot — a legacy of his first ball low dismissal to Joel Garner in Melbourne on Sunday. He will, make a decision before play gets under way but said, "I can hardly walk at the moment."

Australian selectors have already brought lefthand batsman David Hookes into their team. Hookes is certain to play whether Hughes is fit or not.

Indian Blues, making the first use of the strip, was sedate in its approach. But once the fielders began aiding them with a display of butter fingers, slack movement and inaccurate throws, the Indians took bold measures. Its total advanced rapidly and saw it finish with 144 in its 22 overs.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

It is certainly not necessary to memorize tables of probabilities to be a good card player. In most deals the right percentage play is obvious, and all that is required is a common-sense approach to it. Here is a case where declarer ran counter to probabilities and cost himself a game. He won the club lead in dummy, played a trump and lost the queen to the king.

West returned a club, which declarer ruffed, and - since he had no further entries to dummy for another trump lead - South had to lose two more trump tricks and go down one. Declarer would have made the contract had he played the nine of trumps at trick two. In that case he would have lost two trump tricks instead of three. In determining whether the nine or the queen is the better play, the simplest way to start is to ignore all trump divisions where it makes no difference whether the queen or nine is played. Thus, if West has the

A-K-10, declarer's play does not matter, since he is destined to fail whatever he does. If the trumps are divided 2-2, South's play is likewise immaterial. All he loses is two trump tricks, whatever he plays. A 4-0 trump division is also irrelevant because he is bound to fail in that case. Actually, the only case that matters is a 3-1 division with West holding the singleton. This can be the ace, king or ten. Because there is a greater chance - 2 to 1, to be exact that West's singleton is the ace or king rather than the ten, the percentage play is the nine. In the actual deal, the percentage play wins.

Gromyko rules out discussions on Poland crackdown

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Monday ruled out a detailed discussion on the Polish crisis in talks with U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, "I have no intention whatsnever of discussing questions relating to Poland or the domestic situation in Poland." he said on arriving for a meeting with Harg

Tuesday.

The United States has said it wants the session devoted mainly to the Polish crisis and diplomats said Gromyko's refusal to enter into a detailed discussion suggested the meeting would be both frigid and stalemated.

"I am certainly prepared to discuss questions concerning relations between the USA and the Soviet Union." Gromyko said in a brief statement at Geneva airport. There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials accompanying Haig, who was spending the day preparing for the long-planned meeting with the Soviet minister.

Haig said on arrival in Geneva Sunday night that he intended to tell Gromyko of the Western world's "outrage" over "increasing repression" by Poland's military rulers, and that the United States held Moscow responsible. But diplomats said it was still unclear whether Gromyko would refuse point-blank to talk about the East-West aspects of the Polish crisis following six weeks of martial

Gromyko said he was ready to discuss "many other international problems" in his planned four-hour meeting with Haig, the first high-level U.S.-Soviet encounter since Polish military law was clamped down on Dec. 13. He made no predictions on how the talks would develop.

Earlier senior U.S. officials said they expected no serious outcome, and other NATO diplomats expressed fears that the meeting could sharpen existing U.S.-Soviet tension over Poland.

"What the outcome of these discussions will be - that is something I cannot say anything about yet. We shall wait and see," Gromyko declared.

The U.S. State Department last week said it was shifting the focus of the talks from arms control to Poland, and scaling the meeting down from a planned two days to one day.

Gromyko said there was no prearranged agenda for the meeting, originally set when the two ministers met for the first time at the United Nations in New York last September. Some diplomats said Gromyko's statement could even presage a Soviet walkout Tuesday if Haig insisted on using the talks for an attack on the Soviet Union.

But many officials said they doubted the Soviet Union would take the initiative in breaking off a dialogue with the United States restarted only few months ago, after deep initial strains between Moscow and the Reagan administration.

U.S. officials have already said that Haig

U.S. officials traveling with Haig from Washington Sunday said President Ronald Reagan was determined not to conduct business as usual as long as what they called repression was under way in Poland. At their last meeting. Haig and Gromyko agreed to open negotiations on limiting European-based U.S. and Soviet mediumrange nuclear missiles. The talks started in Geneva on Nov. 30. Although Haig has described the European missile talks as being in a very special category despite the Polish crisis. the steady worsening of U.S.-Soviet relations has raised fears in West European capitals that they could also be threatened. U.S. officials have said they have no plans to interrupt the missile talks, which are also being held in Geneva. The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Haig was receiving a detailed briefing on the talks Monday from chief U.S. negotiator Paul Nitze.

American sources said there was no dramatic progress in the negotiations so far, but useful work was being done in clarifying the positions of the two sides. Haig also conferred with Swiss Foreign Minister Pierre Aub-

Diplomatic sources said the atmosphere at the Haig-Gromyko meeting could be affected by an announcement in Warsaw by Polish leader Wojciech Jaruzelski that martial law restrictions would be lifted by the end of February. The United States and other Western governments have called for a lifting of martial law, release of detainees, and resumption of talks between the Polish state, the suspended Solidarity free trade union organization and the Roman Catholic church.

One U.S. official accompanying Haig said. the Reagan administration islooking for not just a moderation of martial law in Poland but an improvement of the total atmosphere of East-West relations.

'Haig doesn't want to establish that tight a linkage to Poland," the official said. "Obviously, Poland is a factor in this," he said. "But so is Afghanistan and so is the Caribbean. I don't want to attribute it to any particular factor."

The Soviet media have made no comment on Tuesday's talks and thus given no clues about the Kremlin's attitudes and expectations. But this silence was itself ominous, suggesting that the Soviet leadership had probably already written off the meeting and expected only a sterile exchange of polemics. diplomats said.

There could be little doubt that Moscow was deeply angered by Haig's announcement last week that he was cutting the talks from two days to one and planned to focus on the situation in Poland, the said. In attitude toward Poles

Bonn urged to take firm line

BONN, Jan. 25 (AFP) - A confidential foreign ministry report has warned that West Germany's moderate line on the Polish crisis is threatening a deep rift between Bonn and its Western allies, according to extracts published Monday in the weekly newsmagazine Der Spiegel.

The report advised the government of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt to anchor itself more firmly in the Western alliance and to replace its policy of detente with the East European Socialist nations "combining a willingness for detente and the demands of security." A foreign ministry spokesman indirectly confirmed the existence of the report by saying it was the ministry's duty "to study all alternatives" to present policy. But he said it would be up to Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher to make the final recommendation to the government.

The extracts published by Der Spiegel said that "the divergences between Bonn and the United States, but also with France Great Britain and Italy, on the Ostpolitik (policy of detente with the East) increasingly threatens to set West German diplomacy against that of its Western allies."

The report questioned the Schmidt government's attitude toward Poland and asked: Was it really incompatible with the Ostpolitik to condemn the attacks on human rights in Poland as (French) President (Francois) Mitterrand has done?." It speculated whether "a speech which is too moderate brings with it the danger, as the French think, that the Soviet Union will believe there is an internal weakness in our country and take advantage of it by increasing its demands?" The report, which Der Spiegel said was written by top civil servants in the foreign ministry, criticized Schmidt's desire to act as "an interpreter" between East and West.,

Bank robbery foiled

NAPLES, Jan. 25 (AFP) - Three attempted bank robbers were shot dead by a security guard at a bank near here Monday, a police source reported.

The source said that the three men and an unspecified number of accomplices attempted to hold up the bank, at Caviano, outside this southern city, just before it closed for the afternoon. The robbers threatened the security guard but he was quicker on the draw and mowed down three before they could make

Arms talks must go on, says Palme

BONN, Jan. 25 (R) - Former Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme, now chairman of an international commission on disarmament, said Sunday increased international tension made dialogue on arms control even more essential.

Our whole history shows that in times of international crisis, dialogue must continue and efforts to achieve peace and arms control must go on," he told a news conference following a three-day meeting of the commission which was set up in 1980 and including politicians from 18 countries. Palme said the coming year could be decisive in either halting the arms race or allowing it to get out of control. There was a chance of a breakthrough at the U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva on the limitations of meatum-range missiles.

The commission is planning to present its report on disarmament to a special session of the United Nations General Assembly in June. Asked about prospects for a nuclearfree zone in Europe, Palme said his commission had discussed the possibility but had not yet reached any conclusions.

The Hamburg branch of West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's Social Democratic Party called Saturday for the creation of just such a nuclear-free zone, a decision which Defense Minister Hans Apel critized Sunday. In an interview in Bild newspaper, he said the creation of a nuclear-free zone in Europe would lead to a further increase in the Warsaw Pact's already-strong superiority in conventional weapons.

He also criticized calls for a moratorium on installing new missiles in Europe while the U.S.-Soviet talks are continuing. Such a moratorium was unattainable and contradicted NATO policy, he said.

Good Morning

الثلاثاء ١ ربيع الثاني ١٤٠٢هـ

On my last trip to Jeddah, I saw that he was doing extremely well — a young man who had come to us from a village in the south. He had asked for a job, but since he had no training of any sort, and wasn't exactly on the ball when it came to townlife. all we could offer him was the position of assistant to Haji Ahmad, the building's

I asked him what he was doing now and he said proudly that he was a computer programmer. He took me around an I saw him at work, handling the sophisticated equipment with confidence, and generally behaving as the true son of his age, the postindustrial age. (In my case, I seem to have missed the industrial age somehow and the gap to the computer age is now too

Seeing him in his new position made me think of him as he came to join us. I reminded him of the story of the "refreshments machine" and he laughed aloud. He has come a long way since then. What happened was that Hajj Ahmad, the building's janitor, had a huge central fuse box in his room, serving the building as a whole. The box had an enormous switch attached to it.

through which you could stop and start the electricity supply. Hajj Áhmad's room was also used by him for social gatherings. He and his friends would sit sipping tea or cold drinks, so that the central fuse box was always surrounded by crates of lemonade bottles and such like. And it was this which caused the misunderstanding when the young man came to work with the Hajj. For he looked at the crates and then at the machine and made what he thought was the obvious deduction. So one day as I was sitting in my office, I noticed the lights going on and off - and kept doing so for a long time. Someone was clearly tampering with the electricity supply. I went down to the ground floor and into Hajj Ahmad's room.

And there was that young man angrily yanking the switch on and off, addressing the machine in very strong language. I asked him what the matter was and he said it was plain daylight robbery. He had inserted some money in the box in order to get a lemonade and then yanked the switch but nothing came. He put more money and tried again, and again and again, and that's why he has now lost his temper and was about to smash the thieving machine

Ludwig turns Jari project to consortium

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 25 (AP) - The Amazon dream of American billionaire Daniel K. Ludwig came to an end Monday, as a consortium of Brazilian banks, insurance companies and industrial conglomerates took over his vast but ill-fated jungle agribusiness

A document filed Monday morning with the Rio De Janeiro State Corporate Registry Legally transfered title of Ludwig's Jari Project 1.6 million-hectare forestry, cellulose, ceramic clay, farming and ranching complex in northern Brazil — to a group of 23 Brazilian corporations. Ludwig, 85 who lives in New York and is said to be one of the world's richest individuals, was a victim of the deceptive lure of the Amazon as a place for making a huge personal fortune.
